

Alex Brady
Assignment 2 part 3
Student no. 20438266

The evaluation of my design from my peers was very helpful and inciteful. It really helped to see other peoples perspectives of my work and made me see things that I probably wouldn't of notice otherwise. It was also very helpful as they are college students which is one of my target audiences for the app. Points such as the "3 words go" being slightly confusing as to their purpose made me think about how necessary it was and if it was really something the app even needed. I have decided to remove this part of the app and replace it with a dedicated page for the meditation portion of the app while keeping the quick controls on the home page for ease of use on the fly. I feel like I achieved my core goals for the app quiet well and I feel the peer reviews I received also reflect this. I obviously have parts to improve upon and change as nothing is ever perfect on the first go. I feel I could improve the calendar screen and make it easier to see the mood selected for each day gone by so that people can see and have an interactive experience with it. I will also make the "clear data" link a button making it easier for people to see. I also want to try to clean up the report screen a small bit and make it less cluttered.